Justification Statement: The Georgia International Law Enforcement Exchange Program provides intense anti-terrorism training to Georgia law enforcement commanders. Training is conducted in Israel and focuses on the most recent trends in terrorist activities, such as targets of choice, weapons currently being used and recent activities of major threat groups and individuals. Each year, the Atlanta Police Department receives grant funding for one commander to attend this program, which is a vital means of networking with other law enforcement commanders worldwide to glean critical information to prevent and respond to terrorism. This year Deputy Chief Harold Dunovant has been selected to attend this program.

Background: GILEE was organized over ten years ago by Georgia State University as a means of preparing key law enforcement personnel to prevent and respond to terrorism. Since that time, literally dozens of police commanders from all over Georgia have participated in this international anti-terrorism program.
